Prologue

A five-year-old at a private elementary school in Dallas was overheard saying of another student, "Jonathan is already four, and he can't do computers."

In five years, every student at Carnegie-Mellon University (Pittsburgh) will be given a computer for personal and academic use. These tidbits from Edward Fiske, New York Times News Service.

What does it all mean? "In another 15 years or so — around 1995, according to current trends — we will see the computer as an emergent form of life, competitive with man." — Robert Jastrow, founder of NASA's Goddard Institute for Space Studies.

"The machine will begin to educate itself . . . Its powers will be incalculable . . . If we are lucky, they might decide to keep us as pets." — Marvin Minsky, MIT computer scientist.

Already, the debate rages. Jastrow states that computers are an artificial form of life because they think, remember, learn by experience and respond to stimuli.

Although still a very simple form of thinking, with the pace of technology, "computer think" could become sophisticated, raising awesome ethical questions with their potential for great harm as well as great good.

Will it ever be desirable to create computers that are superior to the human mind?

Computer scientists such as Jastrow and John McCarthy (Stanford Univ.), believe such developments are not only desirable, but very possible. McCarthy is only reluctant to predict how soon artificial intelligence will surpass the human mind.

Others, like Berkeley philosopher Herbert Dreyfus, maintain that human intelligence is far beyond the rules of behavior that can be programmed into a machine.

Another critic is Joseph Weizenbaum, a leading computer scientist, who maintains that there are certain jobs computers should never do, even if they were able to.

Humanities professor Theodore Roszak, has written a novel called Bugs, foreshadowing a dim future heralded in by computer science.

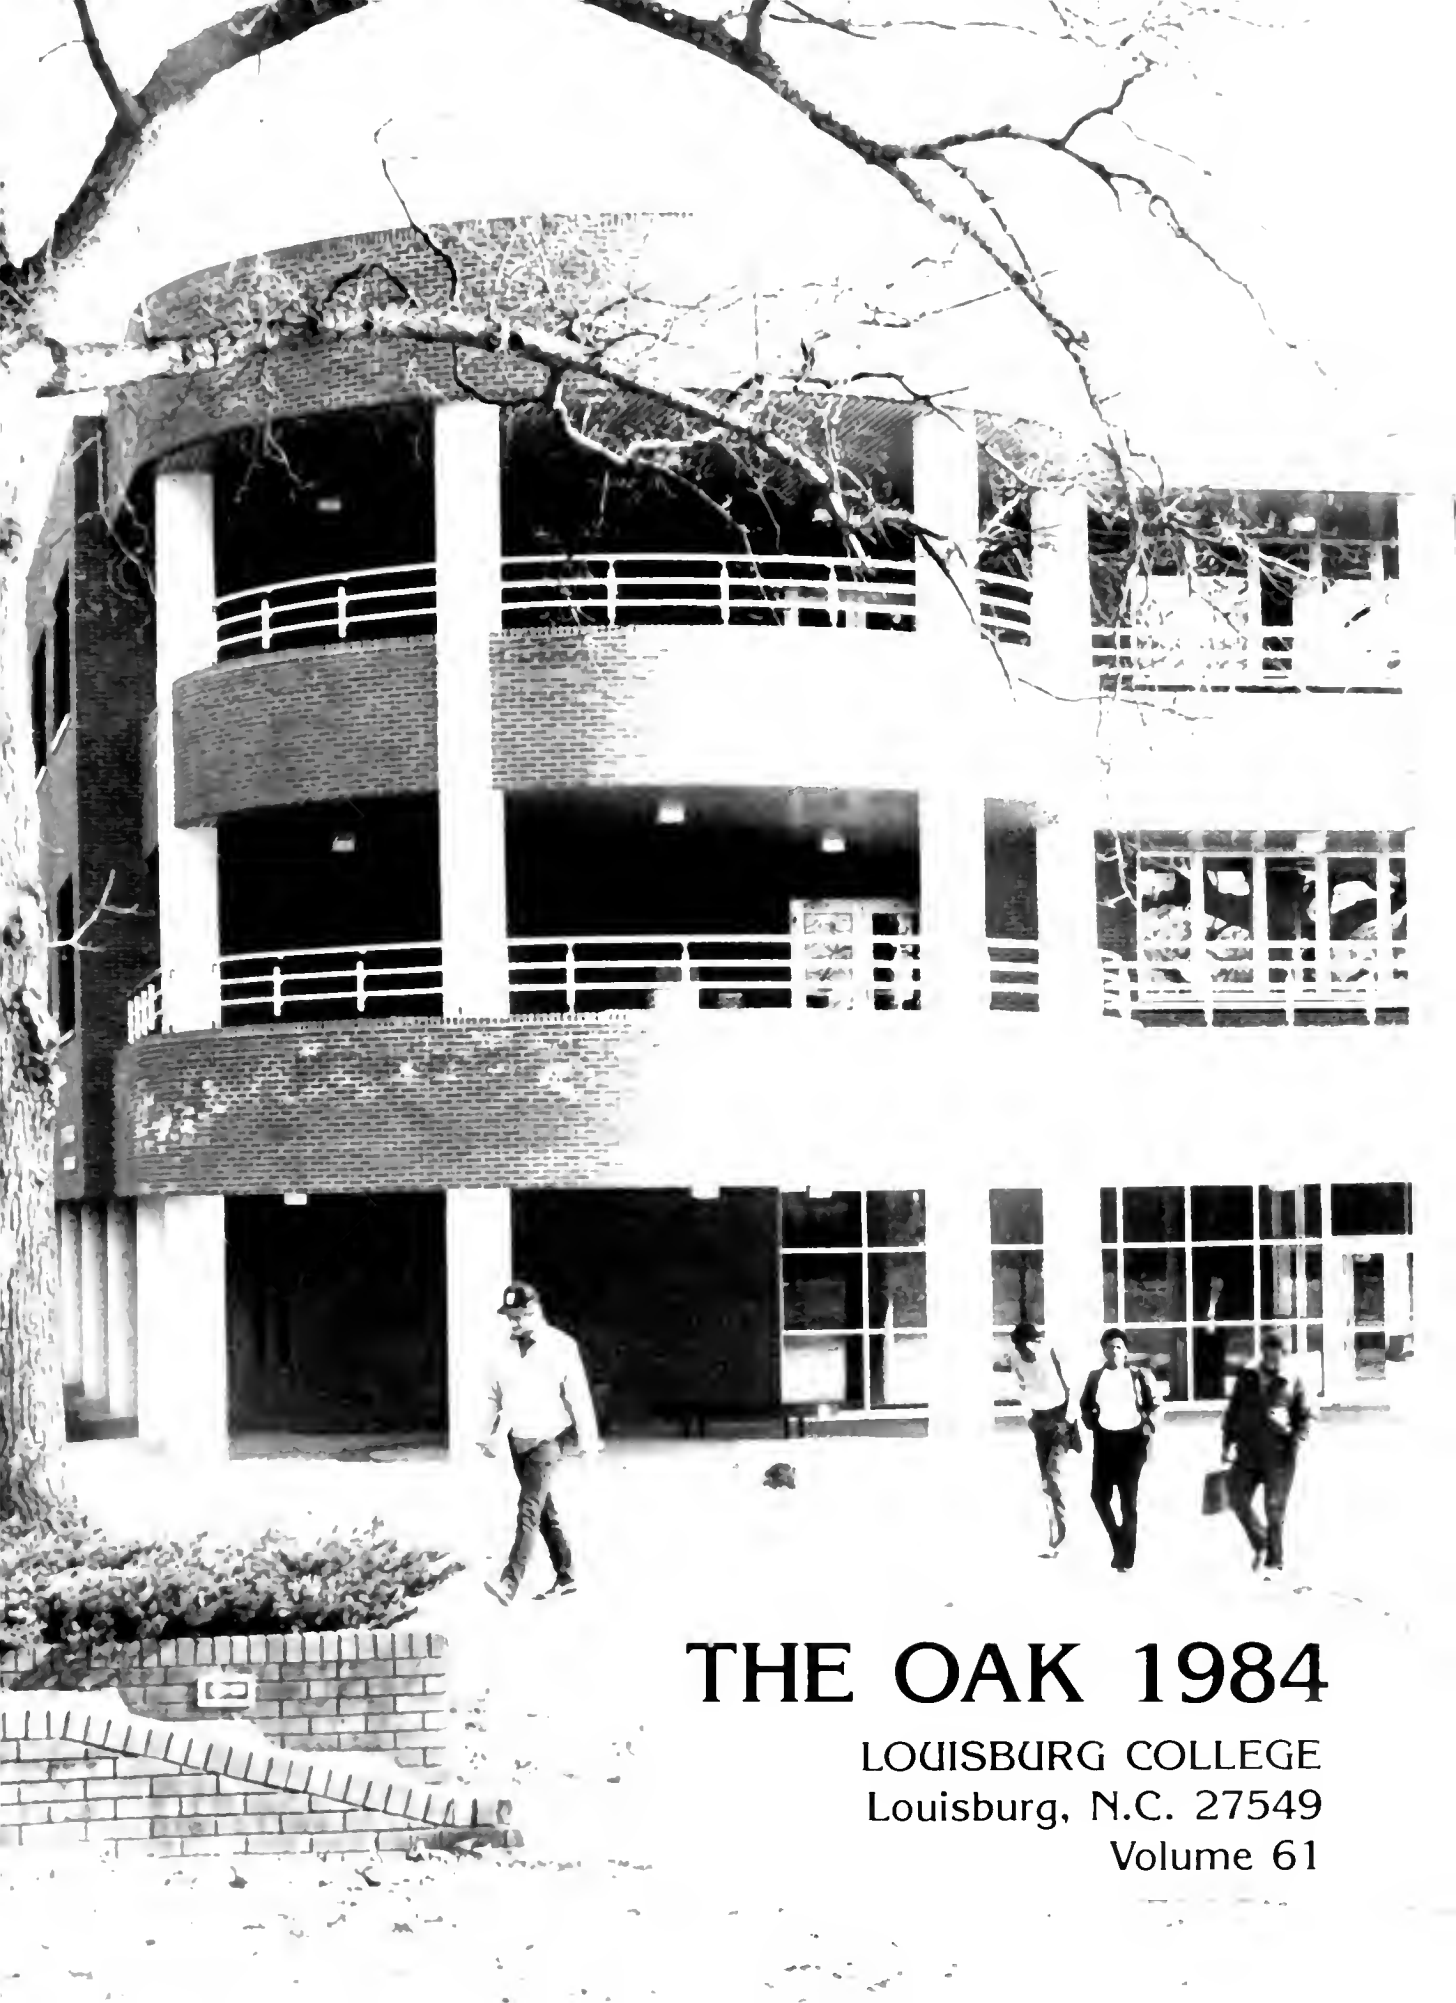

What will happen to the right to privacy? What about computer black-mails? What about the uncanny power conferred on those persons or agencies that control the computers? And finally, Roszak is alarmed that computers foster a distorted image of what a person is and what the human mind is.

Heady stuff. As I write, I am reminded of my first computer encounter. My fascination with the machine — a TRS80 model 100 portable — and my determination to make the machine work for me, to do my bidding, to make life easier.

With each bit of mastery came a subtle feeling of power, and a desire for more control. I want to know more about computers. I want the scientists to include all of us, somehow, in this crucial debate over what is desirable. I want, above all, to see computers used to enhance our humanity and understanding.

In the coming years we must define ourselves more than ever, lest in some shadowy future, an artificial brain might have the power to do it for us.

LOUISBURG COLLEGE

Volume 61

Catching up with the present

Fall '83. A full house was waiting for Instructor Steve Howard's computer class, offered by our Weekend College.

Of the 28 students, 50 percent were regular Weekend College students working towards Associate Degrees, and 50 percent were either pursuing continuing education credit or were business people learning job-related skills.

What they most had in common, as older students, was the knowledge that computer skills are rapidly becoming paramount in the occupational world.

From classroom to job, computer-wise, was a short step for some class members. Betty Jean Harper uses her computer skills in the Financial Aid Office at Louisburg College. Local Businessman Robert Edwards was in the class to gain expertise he could utilize in his work.

In a real sense, these folks are catching up with the present. Computers have infiltrated the majority of occupations, and will increasingly change not only office practices and procedures, but inevitably the whole nature of work.

Of course, it doesn't stop there. The proliferation of computer games and educational software attests to the increasingly strong market for home computers.

The computer lab at Louisburg stays busy. Already, three evening classes of word-processing have lured most of our faculty to the computers. Increasingly, faculty hand-outs, tests, and research manuscripts are stored on floppy disks or tapes.

The advent of computers has turned most all of us into students again, pondering not only our bits and bytes, but what sort of world we're creating with the awesome capacity of silicon chips and the curve of thought possible in the pristine logic of binomials.

Lost in contemplation of the screen, computer student Jeff Brawn watches a classmate work through BASIC.

Anticipating the future

Instructor Matt Brown guides our students in the language of BASIC. For those enrolled in our terminal computer program, it is a step toward mastering essential literacy and eventually programming skills.

They are attentive and accepting. For them, computers will take their place along side telephones and television with an ease that is difficult for their older counterparts.

Within this decade, most occupations will directly involve computers.

Will we save gas and preserve more fossil fuels when home computers allow us to order groceries and handle banking transactions without taking to cars? Will we form new friendships, possibly even find a mate, through computer interfacing via modems, commonly known as computer C-Bing?

Of course. It's already happening. And as it does, the entire process of educating and learning will change and alter, in the very dramatic ways it did after Gutenberg's printing press revolutionized communications centuries ago.

What will we see in the future at Louisburg College? How will our leisure time and student activities reflect the encroachment of technology? Will students attend classes equipped with computers and text software instead of textbooks? Will quizzes and "papers" be handed to professors on floppy disks? Very likely.

One thing for sure. This may not be MIT, but already computers are becoming an integral part of Louisburg College life.

Computer instructor Matt Brown guides his students.

STUDENT LIFE

What's in store . . . Let's move in and see

Could Linda Moyer possibly be waiting for some Lou(U) hospitality to help her out?

Dreaming of a new elevator in Wright Dorm gives Avis Miller an incentive to carry her bags upstairs

As August 20 crept closer and closer, many different feelings began to erupt. Mixed feelings about my departure were felt by all the members of my family.

In a unified manner we all began to prepare for me to leave. While preparing what to take with me and what to leave behind, shirts, pants, jewelry, and different accessories were misplaced and had to be searched for in the chaotic whirlwind my room had become.

It was impossible to think about becoming a college girl with so much confusion. Ready or not, with temperatures in the high 90's I began my journey to Louisburg to initiate my college career.

Once at Louisburg, my first experience as a coed started by unpacking the car and toting all my possessions up sixteen steps to second hall Merritt. Then there was the anticipation of meeting my roommate and suitmates.

Next came the tears when the time came to tell my parents goodbye and watch them drive away without me. Seeing them leave brought me the realization of the responsibilities, fear, and naiveness of being on my own.

What's in store . . .
We're getting there

Taking a break from all the excitement, Ernie Jamison has a "coke and a smile," as he cools off in front of his fan on a hot and humid day. From the look on his face, the large fan, a cool drink and music makes the day more bearable.

It's a family affair as Troy Barnett, his mother, and his brother Phillip Barnett rest from moving him in.

A big look of relief is what we see from Elizabeth Johnson, who has been waiting in anticipation to be served by Vann Swain and Jamie Eller. 'There's that Lou (L) hospitality for you!'

'It's just the thing, is what Rich Thompson seems to say as he moves into his room

Moving around 'n 'round

Even in the most awkward situations, these gals do the only thing they can; Grin and bear it!

Give me strength! Raul Brewster and Kristina Smith get more than they bargained for during an aerobics class.

What is it about aerobics that makes it a new fad of 1984? Besides the fact that it is good for one's health, there are other things that have attracted Lou-U students to this exercise.

Besides the fact that it gives the maximum benefits for the minimum amount of time, aerobics is actually fun! The aerobics student at Louisburg College gets an hour credit for exercising to the top 40 hits, thanks to instructor Johnsie Currin.

Another advantage of aerobics is that it helps reduce stress. A good workout is an acceptable form to get rid of hostility, which is something we college students get quite a lot of.

Another recreation provided at Lou-U was the Fall Carnival sponsored by the SGA. The carnival included events such as the famous kissing booth, basketball shooting, tossing pennies in a jar, throwing sponges at people and tossing darts at balloons.

After winning an event, the person's name was entered into a drawing box. At the end of the carnival, there was a drawing for prizes. The more games one won, the better chance for a prize.

Giving up spare time to help Lou-U's Winter Carnival, Ed Moolenaar and Dean Moore display some of their hidden talents.

Selling his charm, Matt Webb obliges Elaine Cardwell at the kissing booth. Aren't you worth more than a quarter, Matt?

Taking advantage of the carnival's kissing booth is James Bittle. Here, he gives Yvette Tucker a smooch on the cheek.

"Hit me with your best shot!" Ed Moolenaar dares anyone to try their luck during Lou U's Winter Carnival.

Concentrating deeply, Dana Smith eyes her target, aims for it, and releases the dart with confidence.

What's in store . . . Beach Music Festival

Gay laughter, music, dancing singing and relaxing filled the atmosphere at the annual Beach Music Festival held at the Franklin County Fairgrounds. The entertainment by different bands was enjoyed by all as shown below.

Stealing away for an amusing afternoon is Allan Daniel and his girlfriend.

Satisfaction seemed to be the unanimous vote for the day's festivities for Robyn Thomas and Debbie Austin.

Obviously this band is enjoying what they do best. This feeling can be exemplified by the crowd as they show their complete agreement by moving to the beat.

Raise your hand if you are having a good time as this young lady demonstrates.

"Take a picture and make the fun last," is this lady's brainstorm.

Parents Day

Expressing his ideas on student life at Louisburg College. Dean Brown gathers the attention of the audience

Parents Day is as special for some people as it may be destructive for others. It's the time when the truth comes out as parents come from all over to meet with teachers and find out the real story, or the hidden truth, whichever may be the case.

This year began with parents registering in the library where they could grab a quick cup of coffee and a brief chat. Then all made their way to the AC Building where Dean Brown and Dr. Norris reassured them that their son or daughter was getting the best education possible. After this presentation it was time to stand in a long line for what was one of Ed's best lunches yet: fried chicken and creamed potatoes.

Following dinner, teachers met with parents, and when the sweaty palms of the students finally bid adieu to their parents later that afternoon, the parents left smiling, knowing that their sons and daughters were in the right hands. Another successful Parents Day at Lou-U is credited to our faculty and students.

Speaking on behalf of the faculty, Professor Raymond Mize explains learning priorities

What's in store . . . Shenandoah

Brilliantly portraying a southern preacher, Ray Mize weds Jenny (Kristina Smith) and Sam (John Harrison)

The play "Shenandoah" was performed during the fall semester by college students, faculty, and local high school students under the direction of Charles Johnson. Johnson acted as choreographer and music director. The play ran four consecutive nights.

"Shenandoah" is the story of a strong-willed Virginia farmer (Robert Daniel) and his unsuccessful attempt to keep his farm and family neutral during the Civil War. Farmer Charlie Anderson's family consisted of six sons (Carl Stafford, Bill Smith, Paul Smith, Joe Mills, David Critz, and Charlie Stafford) and a daughter, Jenny (Kristina Smith).

and to

Jenny falls in love with Sam (John Harrison) who, after a little gentle persuasion, finally asks her to marry him. Unfortunately, Sam is swept off to war, leaving the new bride behind with her family.

The war continues to affect the Anderson family, which is torn apart by both separation and death. When the family is reunited in the end, they know that their wish to remain neutral in the war was impossible, that it was a part of everyone's life.

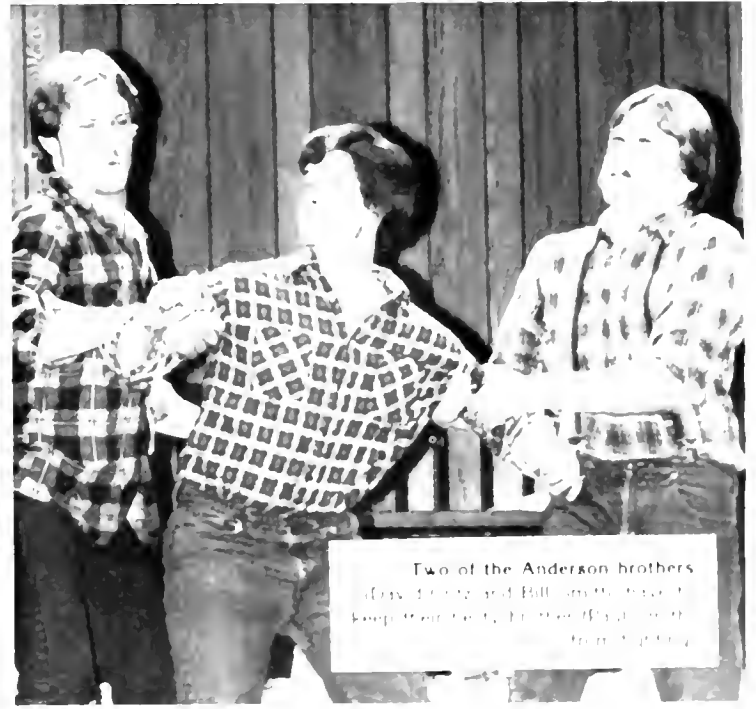

Singing "Next to Lovin'", Carl Stafford, Paul Smith, Joe Mills, Bill Smith, and David Critz portray the Anderson sons Explaining to his son why he can't have a television set, the father is left frustrated.

Afraid that she'll be the only girl on the dance floor, the mother watches with people.

Two of the Anderson brothers (Ray and Bill) are afraid to keep their feet from the floor during the dancing.

Dating Game

Which will it be? Bachelor number one, or number two? This is what one may have heard at the annual Lou-U Dating Game sponsored by Merritt Dorm.

The same format as the original Dating Game was used, asking personal questions of three unknown contestants. The contestant that impressed the inquiring bachelor or bachelorette the most won a date with him or her.

Mike Ball was master of ceremonies for the evening as the audience enjoyed the shocking, embarrassing questions that were asked. The answers were no less surprising.

Bachelorette Gracie Davis chose between Hanes Hoffman, Matt Webb and Robert Kearns. Robert Kearns was her choice.

Bachelor Bird Wilkins chose between Judia Harrison, Cheryl Bell, and Jackie Mills. His choice was Judia Harrison, who stated that she was "hard to get."

Between Ronnie Cantor, Fred Parker and Rick Barrett, Christi Lamar chose Fred Parker for her date.

Bachelor Bernie Carraway found it difficult to decide between Sarah Wheelless, Pam Baker, and Yvette Tucker. He finally made Sarah Wheelless his choice. We'll leave her comments to everyone's imagination.

Not only were the bachelors disappointed about the lady, but even the audience had trouble recognizing Gracie Davis.

It's bachelor number two, Fred Parker! Other contestant, Ronnie Cantor, and Rick Masters seemed relieved that it was over.

Talent Show

"Putting On the Ritz" was the theme of this year's talent show, and this event drew a larger crowd than practically any other on campus.

Mr. Mize was the master of ceremonies as the colorful and graphic performers gave it their best shot.

The entertainment started with Bill Smith and Paul Smith. They gave their interpretation of Doug and Bob Mackenzie's "Great White North," which resulted in second place. Then, with leaps and bounds, Raul Brewster demonstrated his martial art techniques, which brought the audience to their feet, giving him first prize.

Singing standouts included Cathy Spears and Mike McClain with "You Don't Bring Me Flowers." Third place in the show was taken by Connie Fogg and Lawrence Alston with the song "With You I'm Born Again," which brought tears and sniffles from everyone in the auditorium.

Other performances by Dolly Tart, Alexis Bennett, Charles Johnson, Seth Washburn, Johnsie Currin, Britt Uzzell, Rick Barrett, Wayne Ray, Lynn Strother, Dean Eiler, Rosalyn Ross, Louisburg College Cheerleaders, Lindsay Mize, Susie Ward, The Lumberjacks were enjoyed immensely by faculty and friends.

This year, "Putting on the Ritz" was a complete success. Lou-U talent was viewed by all.

One more to get in the air, Biology professor Seth Washburn demonstrates his juggling technique.

Sourwood Mountain Cloggers' member Lynn Strother struts her stuff to a Dolly Parton tune.

Encore, encore! Many talent acts were definite crowd pleasers.

"I'm a lumberjack, and I'm OK. I sleep all night and I work all day. That was the song of these lumberjacks."

What's in store . . . Homecoming '83

Awaiting the return of the ball, Louisburg Canes and Brevard contemplate their next move. Louisburg won the homecoming game.

Reluctantly, Catherine Beck presents newly elected queen Jackie Mills with her "crown of honor."

Who will be the new Homecoming Queen? This question was asked throughout the day by students. Everyone was anticipating the game and half-time events.

As halftime neared, spectators began to predict the outcome of the Homecoming court. Each contestant and her escort was introduced as they walked on the court.

The contestants were as follows: Kim Bass; 1st runner-up, Martha Butler, Sally Coleman, Haven Cooper, Gracie Davis, Dorothy Glonek, Linda Heffers, Saron Holder; 2nd runner-up, Cristi Lamar, Jane Logan, Jackie Mills; 1983 Homecoming Queen, Gail Rivenbark; 3rd runner-up, Tammy Snyder, Wendy Tharrington, Yvette Tucker and Traci Warren.

Afterwards, students, faculty, and friends gathered for a dance in the Multi-Purpose Room to close out the night.

Even President and Mrs. Norris and Dean Craig Eller were seen shaking a leg on the dance floor, which also added to the variety of entertainment during this spectacular evening.

Kid's Christmas Party

Getting his kicks is what Raul Brewster did as he performed his karate expertise at the CLC Christmas party

Sharing the Christmas spirit was the theme at the annual Christmas party sponsored by the Christian Life Council. The real meaning of Christmas was touched upon by Whit Cotney with the reading of the Christmas story.

Charles Johnson and Molly Barnes added an extra sparkle by their solos of "What Child is This," and "O Holy Night," respectively. Charles Johnson also led Christmas carols in which everyone participated.

An unusual feature was presented as Raul Brewster and Doug Keelan showed their talents in a karate exhibition.

Fun and games also attributed to the success of the party. Games such as testing quickness by catching a dollar bill and a time game that tested ability to count are a couple of the events that were held. The breaking of pinatas was the most exciting event of the evening.

Refreshments were also served and the night was highlighted by special appearance of old Saint Nicholas. Santa handed out gifts to all the kids which brought many delighted little faces.

The CLC members really made this Christmas a special one and brought a little joy to all that attended, and to the participants.

Singing her way into the children's hearts, Molly Barnes puts her talented voice to good use for a wonderful cause.

Watching with amazement, these children are enjoying the entertainment which has been furnished for them by the C.C.

With much anticipation, this little boy receives a gift from Saint Nick. Who said there wasn't a Santa?

Adding to the excitement of the day John Peoples supervises as these two little girls break into a candy filled piñata.

Love was in the air for the entire student body at the King and Queen of Hearts Dance sponsored by the SGA on Valentines Day.

The entertainment for the evening was the Band of Oz. They put on a spectacular floor show and provided the students with all types of dancing music.

Not only did the show consist of beach songs, but a tribute to Rick James as well. The sound quickly changed as Kenny Rogers was imitated with style. Even some clogging music was played for country music lovers who like to kick up their heels. "Maniac" from Flashdance was played for the fast dancers in the crowd.

Anyone attending the dance got their fill of fun, food, romance, and more. The students got a chance to get away from their studies for a night of dance and romance.

The first annual "Brotherhood and Unity Celebration" was held during the week of February 19-23. The week emphasized the importance of working and sharing together. Students, faculty, staff members, as well as individuals from the community, all volunteered their time to make this week special. Program coordinator for the week was Charles Johnson.

The opening night program was given by Dr. Oliver Johnson, who gave the students an idea of what brotherhood and unity are all about.

Movie night featured Bill Cosby on prejudice. Bill Cosby portrayed America's most comical bigot, gathering all the cliches and stereotypes about particular groups of people. Another movie featured "Amazing Grace." Each of the songs was filmed in its natural setting, and archival footage of Billie Holiday, Bessie Smith and Woody Guthrie was included.

Another feature of the week was the Poetry Reading held in the Kenan Lobby. Poems ranging from love to death were recited by faculty and students. Some of the poems were written by the students themselves.

The college cafeteria provided students with an evening of entertainment as they ate dinner for another feature. Good talent was indeed put to use as Charles put together a special show.

The final event of the week was the live production of "Ain't Misbehavin'," the Fats Waller musical. It was indeed a comical production put together by talented people, including our own Charles Johnson.

The art classes have done everything from sculpture and ceramics to designing album covers through product design.

The art students have taken advantage of their talents and put them to good use.

The agenda for graduation began Friday morning, May 11, with the Graduates' Breakfast. This was a time for the graduates to reflect on special moments at Louisburg College while enjoying a breakfast buffet before beginning practice for the commencement exercises.

The Alumni-Graduate Banquet was held at 6:30 that evening, and special recognition was given to the Golden Agers of the class of 1934 as well as to the new graduates.

Finally, the big day arrived. Everyone gathered in Main building at 10:00 Satur-

Performers sometimes almost have to be escorted off-stage, so happy are they to perform. It's always a long evening, but full of joy and the best entertainment you'll find.

Summer and Smoke

"Summer and Smoke" was presented by the Louisburg Players in the fall of 1983.

It is the story of a young girl named Alma, (Jamie Eller) who falls in love with John Buchanan, Jr. (Gene Wooster). Buchanan, Jr. leaves for medical school unaware of Alma's feelings for him. She waits patiently for his return.

When Buchanan finishes medical school, he returns home and practices with his father. But because of his womanizing, his career suffers.

Alma tries diligently to win John's attention, but fails. She fears becoming an old maid as her life revolves around teaching piano at home. She rarely goes out.

When Alma finally goes out with John she discovers that she doesn't really care for him. Instead, she falls in love with one of her music pupils.

In the end, John becomes very stable and attends church regularly, while the once placid Alma begins to live it up.

Nothing is too serious to keep Dogpatchers from dancing. The Players came up with fancy footwork to match the occasion.

Mammy and Pappy Yokum, played by Star Caldwell and Mike McClain, are at it again over whether or not Abner is grown.

(left) Never at a loss for words, Mammy Yokum doesn't take too kindly to what her neighbor has to say.

The Louisburg Players' spring performance was the entertaining musical, "Li'l Abner." A cast of 41 worked together on the production which ran from April 11-14. The Players did an excellent job portraying how Abner Yokum saved the town of Dogpatch, U.S.A.

As the play opened, the town of Dogpatch was widely considered to be the most unnecessary town on earth, a place destined to be wiped off the face of the map.

To the horror of the town's inhabitants, they discover that Dogpatch is going to be used as a testing sight for atomic bombs.

In the meantime, the villain, played by William Wilkins, is planning a marriage between Abner and the Apassionate Von Climax (Leslie Goodfellow). This, of course, would be no problem, except that they have to get by Daisy Mae (Elisa Frazier). She wants Abner for herself.

The play has the sort of happy ending that everyone loves: Dogpatch is saved, the villains are exposed, and Li'l Abner and Daisy Mae are happily married.

"Not a satisfying year for the Lady Canes," said Coach Sam White. The team was plagued with player shortages and lack of experience. Bonnie Powell was the only returning starter, and was a big help to the young team.

Nevertheless, the team finished with a .500 year, and were able to win the Peace College Tournament.

Bonnie Powell came back after an injury to score a remarkable 44 points in one game, tying a school record for most points scored in a single game.

Coach White is hoping for a good recruiting season. Fall '84 will begin as '83 did, with only one returning starter. Coach White must have his eye on some good recruits. He anticipates a very quick team for next year. Look out for the new Lady Canes. They are expected to be something else.

Cheerleaders '84

Loyalty, spirit, and dedication, are all important ingredients that are essential for a cheerleading squad to become successful. The Louisburg College cheerleaders exemplify this description.

Some of the advantages of being a Louisburg College cheerleader are the opportunities to travel and meet people, and the pride of showing one's school spirit. Getting the crowd in the stands as well as the ballplayers excited is also a job in which the cheerleaders aim to please.

The requirements for being a cheerleader are having a Grade Point Average above 1.5, showing good behavior by setting a good example for other students, and having a clean, neat appearance at all times. Above all, one needs perseverance throughout the season.

This year, the cheerleaders had a fund raiser to raise money to buy new uniforms. A car wash and a M & M sale was a successful technique to supply the squad with colorful uniforms. They consisted of white skirts with red pleats, a white sweater, and a red Hurricane emblem.

The squad cheers during basketball season at home and away games. They enjoy all the support they can get from enthusiastic supporters.

Standing tall and looking good, Kim and Raul practice for an upcoming game.

Flying high, the cheerleaders show off a favorite stunt.

Satisfied with her connection with the ball, Paula Goodman is determined to get a hit.

The Lousburg College softball team, under the direction of Sheila Cotten, finished the year with a very good season. The team started the season rather slow but was able to put things together and finish the season impressively.

Coach Cotten felt that the record did not show what kind of team Lousburg really had, but she felt that was due mostly to lack of enthusiasm. There were many standouts on the team, one of which was Paula Goodman, who Coach Cotten feels is the backbone of the team.

The team this year was able to finish second in the LC Tournament and first in the Region X Tournament. Coach Cotten feels that the recruiting has gone well and next year should be even better.

The Louisburg College Baseball Team, under the coaching of Russell Frazier, finished with a very impressive record. The team started the season with only one returner, Wes Ragland. The team was led by the bat of William "Tank" Hardin, who broke the conference record for home runs in one season. Other impressive freshman were Greg Briley, Lyle "Dobie" Swepson and Jimmy Caldwell. On the mound, freshman Joe Giles posted a 6-0 regular season record. Other standouts were Brian Wagoner, Tommy Purcell, Johnny Webb, and Dave Benovy. Coach Frazier feels that if he can get some outstanding pitching recruits, Louisburg can look forward to another outstanding year.

The Louisburg Golf Team is young and inexperienced, but according to golf coach Steve Howard, the team was one of great potential.

The team consisted of eight freshmen and only two sophomores. The two more experienced players were Marvin Waters, who ended the season with the lowest stroke average, and Alan Brassard, who showed good play.

Mr. Howard looks on the year as a growing experience for the team, and as they mature their playing will become better.

A team effort is all that it takes, and if wanting to win is any indication of getting closer to success, these golfers fit it to a "tee."

Frazier's 500th win

Field of events . . .

Since Coach Frazier doesn't chew tobacco, Dr. Norris presented him with this pack of "Red Man" for the baseball team

On February 17, 1984 Louisburg College honored Coach Russell W. Frazier for his 500th win in college baseball.

Invited to the banquet were faculty, staff administrators, fellow coaches, former players, Board of Trustees, the present ball team, Frazier's family, local friends and the media.

Dr. J. Allen Norris presided at the occasion and presented Coach Frazier with a plaque and a Distinguished Service Award from Louisburg College. According to Norris, the college wanted to present something that would be in keeping with the honor, but it was hard coming up with something since the baseball field had already been named after Frazier.

The Distinguished Service Award stated: "The Louisburg College Distinguished Service Award is presented to Russell W. Frazier in recognition of his 500th collegiate career win as a baseball coach and dedicated service as Athletic Director and member of the faculty. February 17, 1984"

On the lighter side, Dr. Norris presented Frazier with a pouch of Red Man chewing tobacco for the team, and a pack of Merit cigarettes (for those tight spots).

Many speakers participated in "toasting and roasting" Coach Frazier. Coach Enid Drake reminded Frazier about being ejected completely from one ballgame in the past.

Miss Ruth Cooke asked all the ladies to join in all All-American salute a la Dinah Shore (blowing kisses) while she "laid one on him."

Austin Ayscue presented Frazier with a baseball signed by all the present ball-players who were on the 500th win team. Also there was Charlie Stevens, a former Louisburg player who is now at Princeton.

Coach Frazier and quoted as saying, "I feel fortunate and blessed by God to be able to do professionally what I have always wanted to do with my life and in a good situation at Louisburg College, and to have a supportive and loving family."

Winners of the softball intramurals were Patten Dorm residents Brian Durham, Neil Oates, Wallace Smith, Ryan Watts, Darrell Jacobs, Sam Sugg, David Jones, John Winslow, and Stafford McMillan.

Athletic Banquet

Louisburg College's annual athletic banquet was held on Wednesday, April 25. The banquet, which was held in the Multipurpose Room, was catered by Ed Moolenaar and his cafeteria staff.

Presiding over the banquet was Dr. J. Allen Norris, Jr., and the invocation was given by Rev. Water McDonald.

Athletic Director and Baseball Coach Russell Frazier recognized William Harding as MVP, Jimmy Caldwell (Mac Seymour Award), and Greg Briley (Hubb Denton Award).

Coach Sam White recognized Bonnie Powell as MVP, and names engraved in the Hardees plaque included Margaret Brown, Bonnie Powell, Constance Hunter, Rosalyn McClearn and Matisha Brown.

Coach Enid Drake recognized Richard Cornette, Rod Lane, Danny Poole, Eric Tang and Irvin Williams.

Softball Coach Sheila Cotten recognized MVP Paula Goodman and presented Dolly Tart with the Coaches award.

Student Gov't Assoc.

The best way to describe the Student Government Association would be involvement.

The purpose of the SGA is to represent the student body in the pursuit of the students' well being while attending Louisville College. This includes allotting the student activity fees to the entertainment Committee, polling the students and making suggestions to improve the college, holding elections for offices and homecoming court, serving on the disciplinary hearing board, and providing a variety of entertainment and activities for the students.

This year's SGA has accomplished its goals in all areas. It has opened the door for many students to get involved by presenting movies such as "Fastbreak," "Stripes," "Coal Miner's Daughter," and "Every Which Way But Loose."

The SGA has also sponsored dances such as a Freshman Welcome Dance, a Halloween Dance, A Homecoming Dance and a Valentines Dance with famous bands performing, such as the Band of Oz.

They have also organized other activities such as the performance given by Bill Clary the Magician, a talent show, and a Miss Lou-U pageant.

The organization consists of four committees which help make its projects successful: The Entertainment Committee, The Disciplinary Committee, the Elections Committee and the Food and Cafeteria Committee.

Officers for the 1983-84 year were Jennifer Kirshner, president; Sean Cassidy, vice president; Elizabeth Robinson, secretary; and Wallace Smith, treasurer.

Christian Life Council

Programming . . .

With events such as the Red Cross Bloodmobile, the Children's Christmas Party and the Rock-a-thon for Easter Seals, the Christian Life Council has become one of the most civically involved groups in the Louisburg College Community.

With the leadership of Reggie Ponder as President, Whit Cotney as Vice-President, Molly Barnes as Secretary and Valerie Morris as Treasurer, this group has done many tasks for the people of Louisburg. When the American Red Cross came for the Bloodmobile, CLC members helped the nurses fill out forms, serve cookies, and even gave up some of their own blood. With the help of the Christian Life Council, the American Red Cross reached a goal of over 100 pints.

Also, when the spirit of Christmas was in the air, the CLC put Louisburg College in a festive mood as they collected money and gave the children in the area a Christmas party. It was a total success with the presence of Santa, the giving of toys and the karate demonstration by Raul Brewster.

The Christian Life Council can be satisfied with the knowledge that their work was well appreciated by everyone.

Much credit goes to Mr. Sidney Stafford, who has been Louisburg College's chaplain and sponsor for the Christian Life Council for the past few years. He has been a great inspiration to his club.

'84 Oak staff programming . . .

The Oak staff is, on the most part, a dedicated group of students who pulls together to put together the best yearbook possible. In the case of the 1983-84 staff, it helped to have a group who could work hard yet have fun at the same time. Collegian — Writer's Club

Programming . . .

For four years, Mr. Raymond Mize has been in charge of Creative Writing class and The Collegian, the school's literary magazine. This past fall he started the Writer's Club.

The Collegian is published once every school year and issued throughout the campus to anyone who wants a copy. The magazine contains artwork, poems, and short stories from Louisburg College students.

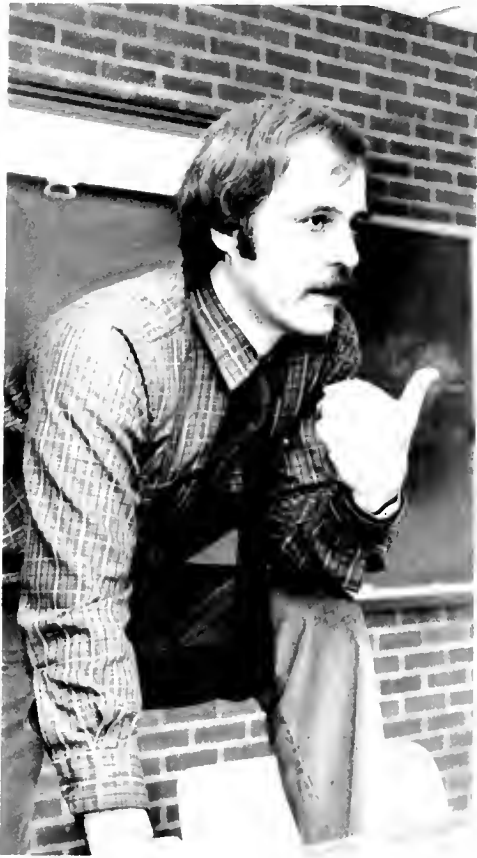

The Writer's Club meets on every other Wednesday for lunch in the Blue Room of the cafeteria. Usually the meetings run about an hour and everyone is asked to drop by and share their writing and skills over lunch. Others comment or give suggestions.

Another feature of writing creativity comes from Mr. Mize's Creative Writing class. Each week the students share their poems and fiction and Mr. Mize and the other members of the class try to give helpful hints on improving each "work of art."

From the Creative Writing class comes one editor and an assistant editor for The Collegian. Another editor is chosen from the previous year's staff. The editors for the 1983-1984 edition of the magazine are Kelly Swinson and Mark Johnson. Assistant to the editors is Tammy Snyder.

States Mr. Mize about Louisburg College creativity, "Annually, the interest in the course and the magazine remains steady, indeed, there has been a growing interest recently. Each year there are pleasant surprises. This is what makes the job interesting."

Louisburg Players

"Theater is my business," are the words of Charlie John Smith, director of the Louisburg Players. The Louisburg Players have been at Louisburg College since 1915. Mr. Smith has been at Lou-U for five years. He enjoys what he does. He loves to work with students. There is a lot of participation from the community for the Louisburg Players, also. Anyone from the community of school may audition; they do not have to have experience. Mr. Smith says, "I am delighted to have new people." During the fall and spring semesters, Mr. Smith and his Players performed "Summer and Smoke," and "Li'l Abner."

1984 Louisburg Players include: Jean Wolff, Heidi Wilson, Laura Goodfellow, Leslie Goodfellow, Leslie Holloway, Jane Logan, DeAnna Payne, Matt Webb, and Jeff Fleming.

"If you're a bachelor, pack up your sachelor," sings Marrying Sam, as portrayed by Charles Johnson in "Li'l Abner."

Dancing a jig in Li'l Abner are Elisa Frazier and Henry Goodson.

Clad in a green suit, Jonathan Jones portrays Evil Eye Fleagle, one of the more devious characters in the play.

Once a year the acting fraternity, Delta Psi Omega, initiates new members. The 1983-84 members are Jamie Eller, Laura Goodfellow, William Byrd Wilkins, Mike McClain and Charlotte Gentry.

Although there are no particular social activities except a spring get together, the members do two major productions each year. This year the fall production was "Summer and Smoke," and the spring production was "L'il Abner."

The qualifications to be in this fraternity are to have a C average and work with two plays, or play two minor roles in a play, or one major role.

Miss Zelda Coor

For 28 years, Miss Zelda Coor has been a familiar and welcome presence at Louisburg College. Her kindness, devotion and dedication have been an example to all of us in selflessness and service.

When I first came to Louisburg as a young instructor just out of grad school, it was Zelda Coor who opened her home to me for two weeks until my apartment was ready. And it was Zelda Coor who invited in faculty members to meet me and to make me feel welcome. Zelda always went the extra mile.

She came to the college in 1956 as director of Alumni Affairs and later served as secretary to Dr. Cecil W. Robbins, college president. From 1965 until 1980, she served as Registrar, and coaxed many an anxious student through the rigors of registration and transcripts. Since 1980, she has served part-time in the Registrars' Office, and was College Archivist until her death on March 17, 1984.

She established the Coor Family Scholarships in 1976, and in 1979 was honored by the college as "Alumnus of the Year."

Dr. J. Allen Norris, Jr., college president, said that "Zelda was one of the most courageous and caring persons I have ever known. She has influenced countless students, along with faculty and staff, in the positive direction of life goals. We will miss her presence, but we will continue to benefit from her inspirational life."

I have yet to adjust to not having her in the Registrars' Office to answer my questions, to inquire, as she always did, about my family, and to share her welcome advice. God bless you, Zelda Coor. We miss you more than words can say.

Marcia McCredie, OAK Advisor

"I fear for the void such an aggregate of institutional loyalty and dedication could leave, my consolation is that they will not be far away. They have set the ultimate example of commitment."

Dean Brown's comments were delivered at a Retirees Luncheon on May 2 for Professors Felton R. Nease and C. Ray Pruette and Mrs. Myrtle King. Faculty Affairs Chair, Dr. Michael Palmer coordinated the event, where our retirees were honored with tributes and gifts.

Making the day especially eventful was the attendance of many old friends who have retired from the college. Among those returning to honor Dr. Nease, Dr. Pruette and Mrs. King were Dr. and Mrs. Cecil W. Robbins, Dr. Ann Blumenfeld, Mrs. Josephine Zealand and Mrs. Elsie Yarborough, to name a few.

Luckily, Dr. Pruette and Mrs. King will still be on hand part-time next year. And Dr. Nease has worked hard during 1983-84 on his collection of specimen photographs collected over many years to leave for the benefit of future biology students.

Honorees Myrtle King, Dr. Felton Nease and Dr. C. Ray Pruette sport flowers and smiles at their Retirees Luncheon, held on May 2 in the Blue Room.

Farewell . . .

The biggest little man we know, Dr. Pruette has left a legacy of superb teaching and exemplary service to Louisburg College.

Never too busy for a fascinating tale, Dr. Nease has made biology a living subject for generations of Louisburg students.

Imposing in stature and firm but kind, Mrs. King has managed everything from student housing to the bookstore with class and efficiency.

There were very few members of the class of '34 who did not manage to return to Louisburg for the Graduate-Alumni Banquet. A number of these folks hadn't seen each other in the 50 years that have elapsed since they graduated. Full of joy, life and good cheer, they remind us of all the special things taht Louisburg College continues to mean.
